Pass The Pain-Capable Unborn Child Protection Act in 2015

An unborn baby at 20 weeks gestation "is fully capable of experiencing pain…Without question, [abortion] is a dreadfully painful experience for any infant subjected to such a surgical procedure," according to Dr. Robert J. White, M.D. Ph.D. Prof. of Neurosurgery, Case Western University.

West Virginians for Life is leading the fight to protect these innocent, unborn children by passing The Pain-Capable Unborn Child Protection Act. Governor Tomblin vetoed the bill in 2014, even though it passed overwhelmingly on a bipartisan basis. We must re-double our efforts to pass it in 2015 to protect these innocent babies from pain.

We, the pro-life citizens of West Virginia, join together with West Virginians for Life in calling for The Pain-Capable Unborn Child Protection Act to become law in 2015.
